Coming of Political Age
American Schools and the Civic Development of Immigrant Youth

REBECCA M. CALLAHAN and CHANDRA MULLER

As one of the fastest-growing segments of the American population, the children of immigrants are poised to reshape the country's political future. The massive rallies for immigration rights in 2006 and the recent push for the DREAM Act, both heavily supported by immigrant youth, signal the growing political potential of this crucial group. While many studies have explored the political participation of immigrant adults, we know comparatively little about what influences civic participation among the children of immigrants. Coming of Political Age persuasively argues that schools play a central role in integrating immigrant youth into the political system. The volume shows that the choices we make now in our educational system will have major consequences for the country's civic health as the children of immigrants grow and mature as citizens.

Coming of Political Age draws from an impressive range of data, including two large surveys of adolescents in high schools and interviews with teachers and students, to provide an insightful analysis of trends in youth participation in politics. Although the children of both immigrant and native-born parents register and vote at similar rates, the factors associated with this likelihood are very different. While parental educational levels largely explain voting behavior among children of native-born parents, this volume demonstrates that immigrant children's own education, in particular their exposure to social studies, strongly predicts their future political participation. Learning more about civic society and putting effort into these classes may encourage an interest in politics, suggesting that the high school civics curriculum remains highly relevant in an increasingly disconnected society. Interestingly, although their schooling predicts whether children of immigrants will vote, how they identify politically depends more on family and community influences. As budget cuts force school administrators to realign academic priorities, this volume argues that any cutback to social science programs may effectively curtail the political and civic engagement of the next generation of voters.

While much of the literature on immigrant assimilation focuses on family and community, Coming of Political Age argues that schools—and social science courses in particular—may be central to preparing the leaders of tomorrow. The insights and conclusions presented in this volume are essential to understand how we can encourage more participation in civic action and improve the functioning of our political system.
ORDER FORM Special 20% Savings

Name ______________________________________________________________________________________________________________

Address _____________________________________________________________________________________________________________

___ Check/money order payable to Russell Sage Foundation enclosed        ___ Visa       ___ Mastercard       ___ American Express       ___ Discover

Account # ___________________________ Expiration date ___________ Signature ________________________________________

Mail form and check/money order to RSF Publications Office
112 East 64th Street
New York, NY 10065

or
to place a credit card order:
Call (800) 524-6401
Fax this form to (800) 688-2877
or order at www.russellsage.org

Special 20% Savings

Coming of Political Age
Rebecca M. Callahan and Chandra Muller

New Book Information

Immigrants Raising Citizens
Undocumented Parents and Their Young Children
HIROKAZU YOSHIKAWA

"Immigrants Raising Children provides a compelling story about the scarring effects of the lack of access to good jobs and social services among undocumented parents on their citizen children."
— Isabel V. Sawhill, The Brookings Institution

$24.95 paperback 978-0-87154-971-6 6 x 9 322 pp.
SPECIAL PRICE—$19.96

Civic Hopes and Political Realities
Immigrants, Community Organizations, and Political Engagement
KARTHICK RAMAKRISHNAN and IRINE BLOEMRAAD, EDITORS

"[Civic Hopes and Political Realities] illuminates how immigrants do—and do not—get incorporated into their new homes. Beneath the scholarly exterior lies tragedy as well as triumph, and these authors adeptly show both."
—Jennifer L. Hochschild, Harvard University

$27.50 paperback 978-0-87154-778-1 6 x 9 408 pp.
SPECIAL PRICE—$22.00

All orders must be prepaid. California, New York, Indiana, and Maine residents add 8.25%, 8.375%, 7%, and 5% state sales tax, respectively; Canadian residents add 5% GST. Residents of CA and NY please add your local (county) sales tax rate as well. U.S. and Canadian customers add shipping costs of $6.00 for the first book, $1.00 for each additional book. Customers outside the U.S. add $7.00 and $3.00, respectively.

Payment must accompany examination copy requests. A full refund will be issued if we are notified that 10 or more copies have been ordered for classroom use or if the book is returned in good condition.

CODE: POLIAGE

Mail form and check/money order to RSF Publications Office
112 East 64th Street
New York, NY 10065

or
to place a credit card order:
Call (800) 524-6401
Fax this form to (800) 688-2877
or order at www.russellsage.org

Order Form

Name ______________________________________________________________________________________________________________

Address _____________________________________________________________________________________________________________

___ Check/money order payable to Russell Sage Foundation enclosed        ___ Visa       ___ Mastercard       ___ American Express       ___ Discover

Account # ___________________________ Expiration date ___________ Signature ________________________________________

Mail form and check/money order to RSF Publications Office
112 East 64th Street
New York, NY 10065

or
to place a credit card order:
Call (800) 524-6401
Fax this form to (800) 688-2877
or order at www.russellsage.org